Health Sciences, A.S. and B.S.

Pacific Union College offers an A.S. and B.S. degree with a major in Health Sciences. These majors can be taken in conjunction with the pre-respiratory care requirements. For more information, see page KNSL-03 or KNSL-04, or contact the Health Sciences advisor in the Kinesiology and Health Sciences Department.

Occupational Information

General Areas of Service

Respiratory care (respiratory therapy) is an allied medical specialty concerned with the evaluation and treatment of patients who have cardiopulmonary problems. Therapists are in demand in hospitals and hospital-related organizations to provide direct patient care to those with acute and chronic problems.

Professional Training

The B.S. degree consists of two years of preparatory courses (see prerequisites at right) and two years of professional courses

* Preferred option.

 This course is remedial and will not count for credit.

at Loma Linda University (see LLU website below). The degree prepares individuals to sit for certification and licensure exams and then to practice as respiratory therapists. Advancement into education, supervision, and management positions is possible, usually following advanced certification.

Job Outlook

Employment opportunities for respiratory care professionals are expected to grow faster than the average for all professions through 2016.

Earnings

Annual salaries for respiratory therapists were in the approximate range of $34,000 to $64,000 in 2006. Most salaries were in the $40,000 to $56,000 range.
