Student Learning Outcomes

The successful student can:

- Identify and analyze the elements and history of film and television production.
- Critically analyze their own work and that of their peers.
- Demonstrate technical expertise with film or television production.
- Produce and organize original forward-thinking student work that contributes to their reels.
- Collaborate and work individually on projects.
- Articulate the authenticity and spiritual value in their work.

Degree Outlook

The BFA in Film at PUC's Visual Arts Department seeks to create professional filmmakers within an inspiring, creative, Christian community. Through diverse coursework, students discover their voice, experience the technical rigor of filmmaking and seek to create work that expands the cultural conversation of cinema. This foundation allows our diverse alumni to pursue a variety of careers in the industry, both in Hollywood and across the globe.

* The "Colloquium" must be taken eight times throughout the student's enrollment at PUC for a total of 1.6 units.

 The "Group Production" sequence must be taken twice- once during the sophomore year and once during the junior year.
