Integrity is expected of every student in all academic work. The guiding principle of academic integrity is that the work one presents as one's own is one's own.

Students shall not violate the Code of Academic Integrity and shall avoid situations likely to compromise academic integrity. Students shall observe the provisions of the Code of Academic Integrity whether or not faculty members establish special rules of integrity for particular courses. Failure of faculty to prevent academic dishonesty does not excuse students from compliance with the Code.

Those who engage in academic dishonesty diminish the quality and value of their education and bring discredit to the academic community.

Categories of Academic Dishonesty

Academic dishonesty includes, but is not limited to, the following:

- 1. Cheating—Using, or attempting to use, unauthorized materials in any academic exercise; or having someone else do one's own academic work. Examples of cheating include looking at another student's paper during a test, bringing notes to a test, obtaining a copy of a test prior to the test date, and presenting homework prepared by someone else.
- 2. Fabrication—Inventing or falsifying information. Examples of fabrication include "dry-labbing" (inventing data for an experiment not done or not done correctly), making references to sources not actually used in a research paper, forging signatures on academic forms, forging letters of recommendation, and falsifying credentials in an application.
- 3. Facilitating Academic Dishonesty—Helping someone else to commit an act of academic dishonesty. This includes giving someone a paper or homework to copy from and allowing another to cheat from one's test paper.
- 4. Plagiarism—Using the words or ideas of another writer without attribution, so that they appear as if they were one's own. Plagiarism includes copying someone else's work word for word, rewriting someone else's work with only minor word changes, and paraphrasing or summarizing work without acknowledging the source.
- 5. Multiple Submissions—Presenting work done in previous courses as if it were new and original work. Although professors are sometimes willing for a student to use previous work as the basis for new work, they expect the student to do new work for the current course. A student who wants to submit a piece of academic work in more than one course should seek the approval of the instructors.
- 6. Abuse of Academic Materials—Harming, appropriating, or disabling academic resources so that others cannot use them. This includes removing tables and illustrations from books and journals to use in a paper, stealing books or articles, and damaging computer files intended for the use of others.

7. Misrepresentation—Lying about or misrepresenting one's work, academic records, or credentials. Examples include claiming ownership of another's work, several students submitting copies of the same computer document and taking credit for group work to which a student did not contribute significantly or fulfill his or her obligations.

8. Electronic Dishonesty—Inappropriately using network access in a way that affects a class or other students' academic work. Examples of electronic dishonesty include using someone else's authorized computer account to send and receive messages, breaking into someone else's files, gaining access to restricted files, disabling others' access to network systems or files, obtaining a computer account under false pretenses, and knowingly spreading a computer virus.

These general definitions may be supplemented or modified by additional policies stated in course syllabi.

Procedures for Addressing Academic Dishonesty

1. When an instructor believes that a student has acted dishonestly, a conversation on the incident in question occurs between the instructor and the student. The instructor should notify the department chair of the incident and the conversation about it.
2. If the instructor is not satisfied with the student's explanation, the instructor documents the incident in writing. The documentation includes definition of disciplinary action. A copy is filed in the Academic Dean's office. These files are available to the Pre-professional Recommendations Committee, to any instructor who is asked for a recommendation, and to the program admissions committees for Nursing, Ministerial Studies, and Social Work.
3. If a second incident occurs in any class, the Academic Dean may give the student an F in the class where the second incident occurred. A third incident may result in suspension from the college for one quarter. A fourth incident may call for permanent dismissal.
4. Students who wish to appeal the decision of the Academic Dean may appeal to the Academic Standards and General Education Committee. Students should submit a written appeal and may appear before the committee if they choose.
5. The decision of the committee is final. However, if any student believes that the final decision is unjust, he or she may follow the grievance procedure outlined in the Student Handbook.
6. Students are entitled to add a written rebuttal to their personal files in the Academic Dean's Office.

Appendix B: Student Rights Under FERPA

In maintaining student records, Pacific Union College complies with the Family Educational Rights and Privacy Act of 1974 (FERPA). This act affords students certain rights with respect to their education records.

FERPA rights extend to any student who has attended Pacific Union College. Your FERPA rights begin on the first day that you attend class at the college and expire upon your death. These rights include:

1. The right to inspect and review your education records.

If you wish to review your education record, you should submit to the Registrar a completed “Request to Inspect and Review Education Records” form, available at the Records Office. Requests will be processed within forty-five days from the date the request is filed. The Registrar will make arrangements for access and will notify you of the time and place where the records may be inspected.

2. The right to request an amendment of your education records that you believe to be inaccurate, misleading, or otherwise in violation of your privacy rights under FERPA.

If you wish to request an amendment to your record, you should submit to the Registrar a completed “Request to Amend Education Records” form, available at the Records Office. If Pacific Union College decides not to amend the record as requested, you will be notified of the decision in writing and will be given a right to a hearing regarding the request for amendment. Additional information regarding the hearing procedures will be provided to you when you are notified of the right to a hearing.

3. The right to suppress the disclosure of directory information, provided that the request is submitted while you are an enrolled student.

If you wish to exercise this right, you should submit to the Registrar a completed “Request to Suppress Directory Information” form, available at the Records Office.

At Pacific Union College directory information consists of the following: 1. Name; 2. Address (local and home); 3. E-mail address; 4. Telephone number (local, home, and cellular); 5. 4. The right to provide written consent before Pacific Union College discloses information from your education records, except to the extent that FERPA authorizes disclosure without consent.

Pacific Union College discloses directory or public information without your prior written consent, unless if you exercise your right to refuse disclosure as described above.

Pacific Union College discloses information from your education records without your prior written consent under the FERPA exception for disclosure to school officials with legitimate educational interests. A school official is: 1. A person employed by Pacific Union College as an administrator, faculty, or staff member; 2. A student employed by Pacific Union College to assist an administrator, faculty, or staff member in fulfillment of his/her professional duties; 3. A person employed by, or under contract to, Pacific Union College to perform a special task, such as an attorney or an auditor; 4. A person or organization acting as an official agent of Pacific Union College and performing a business function or service on behalf of Pacific Union College; 5. A member of a Pacific Union College committee (may include student members); or 6. A person serving on the Pacific Union College Board of Trustees. A school official has a legitimate educational interest if the official needs to review your education record in order to: 1. Perform appropriate tasks that are specified in his/her position description or by a contract agreement; 2. Perform a task related to your education; 3. Perform a task related to your discipline; or 4. Provide a service or benefit relating to you as a student such as health care, counseling, job placement, or financial aid.

Upon request, Pacific Union College may disclose information from your education records to officials of another school in which you seek or intend to enroll.

Upon request, Pacific Union College may disclose information from your education records to your parents if you are a dependent student as defined by the IRS code, provided that proper documentation is on file at the college to establish dependency.

Pacific Union College may disclose information from your education records under additional FERPA provisions authorizing disclosure without consent. A full description of all authorized exceptions for disclosure may be obtained from the Registrar.

As of January 3, 2012, the U.S. Department of Education’s FERPA regulations expand the circumstances under which your education records and personally identifiable information (PII) contained in such records — including your Social Security Number, grades, or other private information — may be accessed without your consent. First, the U.S. Comptroller General, the U.S. Attorney General, the U.S. Secretary of Education, or state and local education authorities (“Federal and State Authorities”) may allow access to your records and PII without your consent to any third party designated by a Federal or State Authority to evaluate a federal- or state-supported education program. The evaluation may relate to any program that is “principally engaged in the provision of education,” such as early childhood education and job training, as well as any program that is administered by an education agency or institution. Second, Federal and State Authorities may allow access to your education records and PII without your consent to researchers performing certain types of studies, in certain cases even when we object to or do not request such research. Federal and State Authorities must obtain certain use-restriction and data security promises from the entities that they authorize to receive your PII, but the Authorities need not maintain direct control over such entities. In addition, in connection with Statewide Longitudinal Data Systems, State Authorities may collect, compile, permanently retain, and share without your consent PII from your education records, and they may track your participation in education and other programs by linking such PII to other personal information about you that they obtain from other Federal or State data sources, including workforce development, unemployment insurance, child welfare, juvenile justice, military service, and migrant student records systems.

5. The right to file a complaint with the U.S. Department of Education concerning alleged failures by Pacific Union College to comply with the requirements of FERPA.

The Family Policy Compliance Office administers FERPA and any complaints may be filed at the following address:

Title IX

Pacific Union College affirms its commitment to promote the goals of fairness and equity in all aspects of the educational program, and to maintaining a respectful learning and living environment that is free from sexual misconduct, intimate partner violence, and stalking. Acts of sexual misconduct, intimate partner violence, and stalking in any form, regardless of the length of the relationship or gender of the individuals, are inconsistent with these commitments, strictly prohibited, and intolerable. A full and complete record of the College's Title IX sexual misconduct policy and procedures can be found at puc.edu/campus-services/student-life/sexual-misconduct-policy.

The College's Title IX policy addresses PUC's responsibilities regarding Title IX and the Violence Against Women Reauthorization Act of 2013; Sec 304. Title IX of the Educational Amendments of 1972 prohibits discrimination from educational programs and activities on the basis of sex (gender) in educational programs and activities that receive federal assistance. The Violence Against Women Reauthorization Act expects that colleges have procedures in place to respond to matters of sexual misconduct, intimate partner violence, and stalking (collectively, misconduct).

All members of the PUC community share in the responsibility to uphold the policy and, if found in violation of the policy, may be subject to disciplinary action. This includes all college students, faculty, and staff, other members of the College community, and to contractors, consultants, and vendors doing business or providing services to the College. This policy covers misconduct between a student and another College student, staff, or faculty regardless of whether the alleged misconduct occurred on- or off-campus or in online communications. In instances where misconduct is found to have occurred, the Title IX Coordinator will take appropriate steps to end such misconduct, prevent its recurrence, and remedy its effects.

As a Christian institution, it is expected that all students, faculty, staff, and guests conduct themselves in a Christlike manner with decency and respect, and uphold biblical principles of morality and conduct. Nothing in the policy is intended or should be construed to waive or relinquish any constitutional or statutory rights PUC possesses as a nonprofit religious institution. Neither should the policy be construed to be a replacement or alternative for the criminal justice system.

Title IX Coordinator and Designated College Officials

Tanya Healy is the Title IX Coordinator for Pacific Union College; she can be contacted at titleix@puc.edu or in Chan Shun Hall, Office #106. Any inquiries regarding the College's Title IX policy or procedures, sex- or gender-based complaints regarding students, faculty, or staff, including sexual misconduct, intimate partner violence, and stalking, should be referred to the Title IX Coordinator or to a Deputy Title IX Coordinator. A list of current PUC Deputy Title IX Coordinators, including contact information, can be found at puc.edu/campus-services/student-life/sexual-misconduct-policy.

Online reports can be submitted at puc.edu/campus-services/student-services/sexual-misconduct-policy/title-ix-incident-reporting-form

Confidentiality

To the extent permitted by law, the confidentiality of all parties involved in the resolution of reported or suspected violations of this policy will be observed, provided that it does not interfere with the College's ability to conduct an investigation and take any corrective action deemed appropriate. While confidentiality cannot be guaranteed, care will be taken to keep investigation discussions appropriately limited to protect the complainant's identity when requested.
